

TRAFFIC GENERATION USING REDDIT

Reddit is an extremely popular social network with over 430 million active users. It's a place where people come to share and discuss topics they are passionate about, and it has a large community of users who can upvote or downvote posts.

This makes Reddit a great place for marketers to get organic traffic from targeted subreddits. This article will cover what Reddit is all about, how you can get started on the site and some strategies for getting free traffic from the platform!

Understanding Reddit

Reddit is, in essence, a social network where people exist in small communities known as SubReddits. These communities (subreddits) are focused around a specific topic and consist of members who care about the topic in question. There are over 100,000 active subreddits on Reddit, so there is sure to be a community for just about any topic imaginable.

Since Redditors (users of Reddit) love sharing new content, it can be a great place to generate traffic to your website or blog. Reddit allows Redditors to contribute content in two main ways; links and text. On the other hand, other Redditors can interact with your content in three main ways; comment, upvote, and downvote.

When other Redditors find value in your content, they will upvote it, and your post will be pushed up the subreddit feed for more people to interact with.

On the other hand, if other Redditors do not consider your post as valuable, they will downvote it, and it will be pushed down the subreddit feed where there will be less interaction. Similar to posts, comments can also be upvoted and downvoted.

Karma is a score that is earned on Reddit based on activity. Karma indicates how much good the user has done for the community, so if your content gets upvoted, you will gain Reddit karma and vice versa with downvotes. When your comments are upvoted, you get comments karma. When your links are upvoted, you get link karma.

This means that if you want to generate traffic from Reddit, you need to make sure that you post engaging and valuable content that users will upvote.

Generating Traffic Using Reddit

Now that we have covered what Reddit is and how it works, let's dive into some strategies to generate traffic from the site.

To succeed in marketing your website on Reddit, the first step is to have an account that is considered authoritative in the eyes of other Redditors.

The best way to establish your authority and earn respect is through getting more karma. Redditors with more karma are considered more authoritative, as karma is the reward given for posting good content.

The best and fastest way of getting more karma is by studying successful posts in your subreddits and replicating them.

You can also find viral content on other platforms and reshare them on Reddit to get more upvotes and karma.

Once you have established some authority with enough karma points, the next step is to drive traffic to your website.

Join The Right Subreddits

The key to getting traffic from Reddit is to join the right subreddits. The best way to do this is by using Reddit's search bar and searching for keywords relevant to your blog or website.

Once you have found a few relevant subreddits, it's important to participate in the community and contribute valuable content. This means that you should not only post your content but also upvote and comment on other posts.

Reddit will recommend new subreddits based on the ones you are already participating in, so make sure to use this feature as well!

Target The Right Content For Each Subreddit

Just joining a subreddit is not enough to drive traffic from Reddit; it's important to target the right content for each subreddit. Pay attention to the content that gets upvoted the most. This will be the best content for you to post as people are already enjoying it.

When posting links, you should make sure that the title and description of your link are catchy and relevant to the subreddit you are posting in.

In addition, be sure to post content that is relevant to a specific subreddit. Reddit is a tight community that hates spam, so it's important to understand each subreddit before posting in them.

Sharing Content

The first step before sharing content on Reddit is to make sure that you understand all the rules of a particular subreddit.

Most subreddits only allow you to post content if you have more than a certain set limit of comment karma.

Spend time on your title; it's the first thing that will get your post's attention, so make it relevant to what you are posting about. Once you submit a post on your subreddit, the only thing shown on the newsfeed is the title of your post. Spend enough time creating an attention-grabbing title, as it's the only way for you to get Redditors to engage with your content.

Timing is Essential

The timing of your posts is also essential, as Reddit has its traffic patterns. The best time for you to post is when you can get the maximum views when most members of your targeted subreddit are online.

To get the peak time when most subreddit members are online, you may need to spend some time observing activity on the subreddit. Visit the subreddit at different times of the day and record how many active members are online during different periods.

Conclusion

Reddit is a great way to drive traffic to your website, as long as you follow the right strategies. It's important to join the right subreddits, target the right content for each one, and spend enough time on your titles. Timing is also essential, so make sure to post at the right time!